

CC Homework

1. I found it very intriguing and interesting, I think what affected me the most was his expectations of his dream fulfillments. I don't really have a lot on what I want to achieve, but the times I do, they are often not up to my expectations. For instance when he wanted to be in the NFL, even though he really wanted to become apart of it, he didn't get very far because of his size and his level of endurance, even though he got a lot out it being his coach constantly berating him to be better and if he simply ignored him, he wouldn't get anywhere. He didn't necessarily talk about those expectations too much, but his story reminds me of some of the things I was interested in but didn't live up to my expectations.
2. I got a 36 on the Mindset quiz, I'm someone with a fixed mindset with some growth mindset elements. I think my perspective of mindset has definitely broadened, but I don't think my mindset's really going to change. I kind of have a "You are your own worst critic" mindset, and while it's not something I should have, it's both helped and hindered my work.
3. I'm a tactile learner, and I did expect to get that. My best way of learning something is repetition and following along. I have short term memory issues and I easily forget something I just watched or listened to that happened seconds ago. I'll most likely try to follow along with tutorials and stuff like that.